

PRESIDENT HARDING DIES

VICTIM OF STROKE OF APOPLEXY; END WITHOUT WARNING

ONLY MRS. HARDING AND NURSE PRESENT

Presidential Headquarters, Palace Hotel, San Francisco, Cal., Aug. 2.—Warren G. Harding, president of the United States, died instantaneously and without warning tonight at 7:30 o'clock, a victim of a stroke of apoplexy, which struck him down in his weakened condition after an illness of exactly a week.

The chief executive of the nation, and by virtue of his office and personality, one of the world's leading figures, passed away at the time when his physicians, his family and his people thought that medical skill, hope and prayer had won the battle against disease.

The disease had been conquered, the fire was out, but seven days of silent, tho intense suffering had left their mark and a stroke of apoplexy came without an instant's warning and before physicians could be called, members of his party summoned, or remedial measures taken, he passed from life's stage after having for nearly two and a half years served his nation and for many more years as native state of Ohio.

The suddenness with which the end came was shown by powderly and Sue Dausser, were in the room at the time. The fact that only Mrs. Harding and the two nurses, Ruth H. Harding, with her characteristic faithfulness and instant tenderness, was reading to the president at the time.

Without a warning a slight shudder passed thru the frame of the chief executive, he collapsed and the end came.

Immediately the indications of distress showed themselves. Mrs. Harding ran to the door and called for Lieutenant Commander Boone and for the other doctors to come quickly.

Only Doctors Sawyer and Boone, the chief and assistant physicians, were able to reach the room before the nation's leader passed away. They were powerless to do anything.

Brave in the face of the president's illness, Mrs. Harding remained brave in realization of his death and did not break down.

Secretary Wallace was the second member of the president's official family to learn of the passing of his chief. He, likewise, was so overcome with grief that he could say nothing.

A third official statement issued at 8:15 P. M., announced that Vice-President Calvin Coolidge, the next in line to occupy the first position in the United States government, had been notified of the president's death.

The message was signed by Attorney General Daugherty and Secretaries Hoover, Wallace and Work. It follows:

"The following telegram announcing the president's death was immediately sent to Vice-President Coolidge, Chief Justice Taft and those members of the cabinet who are not in San Francisco:

"The president died at 7:30 P. M., from a stroke of cerebral apoplexy. The end came peaceably and without warning."

It was announced in a fourth official statement issued at 8:32 P. M., that Mrs. Harding had withstood the shock of her husband's death and continued to be "the bravest member of the group."

Her first words, when she realized the president had died, were:

"I am not going to break down."

The statement said:

"Mrs. Harding, who from the beginning of the president's illness had expressed complete confidence in his recovery, did not break down. On the other hand, she continued as from the beginning, the bravest member of the group."

"When it was realized that the president had actually passed away she turned to those in the room, whose company had turned to her, and said:

"I am not going to break down."

General John J. Pershing, accompanied by Rear-Admiral Hugh Rodman, retired, Mayor John J. Rolph of San Francisco, and Supervisor Angelo Rossi, passed into the president's room at 8:45 P. M.

BODY OF PRESIDENT HARDING TO LEAVE ON SPECIAL TRAIN

Will Run Direct to Washington Under Military Escort

(By the Associated Press) Bulletin
SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 2.—The body of President Harding will leave San Francisco on a special train at about 7 o'clock Friday evening and go direct to Washington, by way of Reno, Ogden, Cheyenne, Omaha and Chicago.

The announcement was made tonight after a conference participated in by the four cabinet members of the president official party in San Francisco and was approved by Mrs. Harding.

The train will make no stops enroute except those necessary for its operation. The body of the president will be borne in the rear car, probably the same in which he made the trip from the capital to the Pacific Coast.

The car will be lighted at night and at all times two soldiers and two sailors, a part of a naval and military guard of sixteen enlisted men, will stand at attention guarding the casket.

The train will carry the presidential party as composed during the trip across the country to Alaska and also General Pershing, Attorney General Daugherty and Mr. and Mrs. Remsburg and family, Mrs. Remsburg being a sister of the president.

The body will not be taken from the hotel except to go directly to the train and there will be only the very simplest private ceremony at the hotel before it is moved.

CONDOLENCES SENT BY NEW PRESIDENT TO THE BEREAVED

(By the Associated Press) PLYMOUTH, Vt., Aug. 3.—President Coolidge issued the following statement early this (Friday) morning:

For this purpose I shall seek the co-operation of all those who have been associated with the president during his term of office. Those who have given their efforts to assist him I wish to remain in office that they may assist me."

"I have faith that God will direct the destinies of our nation."

GREAT POWERS DIFFER WIDELY ON SETTLEMENT

Differences on Reparations with France Still Unsolved

(By the Associated Press)

LONDON, August 2.—Seldom has parliament separated for a long vacation under such an ominous cloud of difficult relations with an allied power as it did today after grave statements by the prime minister, Stanley Baldwin, in the house of commons and the secretary for foreign affairs, Marquis Curzon, in the house of lords, revealing an apparently unsurmountable divergence of views between England and France as to how to deal with the reparations question. Although the ministerial statements revealed much more than had been expected of the details of the negotiations with France and Belgium showing, for instance, that England with her draft note to Germany plainly advised the German government to withdraw her decrees abetting passive resistance in the Ruhr, yet the statements still leave the country in ignorance of the British government's next step, and judging from Lord Curzon's speech, the ministers themselves are not yet definitely decided on this point.

The government clearly hopes that it may still be possible to bring pressure to bear on the French government thru an appeal by laying its case before a new tribunal, namely the civilized world.

It is indicated from Paris tonight that M. Poincare has no objection to the publication of the French side of the case so that within a short time the public will have possession of all the details of the recent negotiations. In the comment in political quarters tonight on the ministerial statements the worst feature of the position as revealed today was considered to be that France in her reply did not deign even to refer to the draft note to Germany and this was held to imply that under no circumstances could the French government be induced to consent to a joint reply to Germany, as desired by the British government.

This view seems to be confirmed by a semi-official statement from Paris to the effect that the French note insisted that the question of passive resistance eclipsed all other questions and must be settled "before anything else was touched."

All advices from Germany recently have indicated that the German government is unlikely to withdraw its resistance decrees and even if it did its alleged passive resistance would continue just the same. Dr. St. Amer, the German ambassador in his latest conference with Lord Curzon is reported to have laid stress on the critical conditions in Germany and how little it would take to overthrow the present "ungovernment."

Not Ready to Split.

The British cabinet evidently has not reached a point where it is ready to pursue a separate policy away from France but in a measure is still awaiting on circumstances this being probably due to the presence in the government of strongly pro-French ministers. The cabinet met today after the parliamentary debate but it is said that no decision was reached to despatch a separate reply to Germany.

VICE PRESIDENT COOLIDGE TO BE NEXT PRESIDENT

There Has Been Little Thought of These Formalities at the Moment So Paralyzing Has Been the Effect of President Harding's Sudden Death Upon the Entire Nation

(By the Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, Aug. 2.—News of the death of President Harding fell with almost paralyzing effect on the national capital.

Never fully awakened to the seriousness of his illness, officials of the government had been encouraged by the improvement of the past few days and a feeling of confidence that he would soon recover was almost universal.

All of those in high official position, however, had arranged for telephone notification in case of a relapse and within a half hour after word of the president's death came, most of them had learned of it. In every case the news was received with expressions of painful shock.

As the news began to reach those on the street there were scenes of sorrow such as had not been witnessed here in many years. Never before had Washington been so unprepared to hear of the death of a chief executive, and the circle of Mr. Harding's friends was one extending down to some of the lowliest of the residents of the capital for during his two and a half years in the white house he had made a place in many hearts by his human qualities and his attitude of constant helpfulness toward everyone.

EXPANSION IN RESERVE NAVAL FORCE PLANNED

Will Enroll Six Hundred Former Naval Pilots

(By the Associated Press) WASHINGTON, Aug. 2.—Plans for the expansion of the naval aviation reserve force, made public today at the navy department, contemplate the enrollment of 600 former naval and commercial pilots distributed in thirteen separate units in each of the regular naval districts next year with an addition of 120 yearly thereafter thru the graduation of new men. The whole plan is contingent upon favorable action by congress on the necessary appropriation in the new naval budget.

Under the present appropriation it has been possible to maintain aviation units in New York and Boston with a possible third unit to be established later in the year. The new policy as outlined by the bureau of aeronautics contemplates an operating allowance of two planes and 50 spares for each unit. In addition to the 600 trained pilots to be enrolled there would be attached to each unit ten men with the rating of seamen second class who would be under training in ground schools and flying and another ten men taking advanced training with an active service unit.

"UNCLE JOE" CANNON EXPRESSES FEELINGS

(By the Associated Press) DANVILLE, Ill., Aug. 2.—Former Speaker Joseph G. Cannon was in bed when informed by the Associated Press of President Harding's death, and was deeply affected by the sad news. "President Harding was very dear to me, for we had been close friends for many years," said Uncle Joe, "and I feel a deep personal loss in his death. I was the most lovable man I ever knew. The country has lost a great man and at a time when his usefulness is most needed."

SPRINGFIELD COAL MINERS WALK OUT

(By the Associated Press) SPRINGFIELD, Ill., Aug. 2.—Two walkouts, involving 650 coal miners took place today near here. Four hundred employees of the Sangamon County Coal company, mine No. 2, were called out by John J. Young, board member, United Mine Workers of America, in protest against the discharge of a locomotive engineer because of alleged defective sight. Diggers at the Chicago-Springfield Coal company's Devereaux Heights mine struck because the pit boss and two assistant managers were said to be non-union men. The local president protested the walkout.

COOLIDGE'S LAST WORDS

The last words of the president were spoken an instant before the apoplexy shock came to a brain that was tired.

Mrs. Harding paused in her reading and her husband glanced up raised his head and said: "That's good. Go on read some more."

Mrs. Harding's appeal to find Dr. Boone and the other physicians sent secret service men hurrying and finding none of the physicians about the hotel for it was the dinner hour, messengers were sent into the streets.

Under the construction of the succession of the vice-president to the presidency in case of death is automatic. In some instances the oath first was administered at a point away from Washington and then was repeated here later as a matter of form.

THE LEVIATHAN'S FINE

There is an element of humor in the fact that the Leviathan, pride of the United States Lines, on its return trip across the Atlantic brought back 62 aliens who have been refused allotment by the Bureau of Immigration at Ellis Island. The Shipping Board, it seems, despite its government affiliations, has come no nearer mastering the intricacies of the present immigration law than have the established trans-Atlantic lines with which it competes.

But if we joke over the fact that the Leviathan has laid itself open to a fine of $12,400 and must return approximately $6,200 in passage money, we should not forget the tragedy of the journey for those who sailed westward with high hopes.

Apparently the State Department and the Department of Labor, although interested in and responsible for the handling of immigration, are failing to work in harmony. They are leaving the selection of immigrants to steamship companies, neglecting examinations for mental fitness abroad and causing great waste and greater suffering.

The nation believes in restriction of immigration, and would probably rejoice in limitations still more rigorous—but there is no excuse for the 13,731 deportments at Ellis Island last year.

There should be some way to event that sort of thing.

THE NATION MOURNS

The whole nation will mourn the untimely and tragic death of President Harding. In these United States when the candidate of any party is elected to the presidency he belongs to the whole nation and it can be said with certainty that President Harding has grown steadily in public estimation.

When Mr. Harding was nominated and elected to the presidency of the United States he was not widely known outside his own state of Ohio and the national capital, where he had served as senator. The public was first impressed with the modesty and reverence with which he entered upon the duties of the presidency. His early utterances as president made it plain that he considered himself no super-man and that he realized that if responsibilities were met and advances made, that these things must come about thru divine leadership and support of the people.

In subsequent months as he met the arduous duties of his post he gave proof that he was a man of quiet force, a man of greater strength and purpose than had been perhaps generally understood. Difficulties of government had increased in the after war days and with rare poise he lent himself to the task of endeavoring so far as possible to aid in restoring the nation to normal times. He gave proof of not only force and strength but bravery as well, and in more than one instance vetoed measures at the risk of sacrificing personal popularity because he held his own views as economically correct.

Harding was a man who did his work without fuss, and therefore got it done ably and efficiently. He stood the bitterness of his foes, the mush of his admirers and the humorous buffets of the fun-pokers, friendly and inimical, all with the same friendly calm. This is a much more difficult thing to do than can be grasped by those of less self-control.

Yesterday we had, according to Samuel Blythe, "a fine type of American for President, a human understandable, modest, kindly man, with all the reserve force needed to govern capably." Today we can but mourn his loss, and bid his spirit God Speed.

It is fortunate indeed for the nation that the man who now becomes president is one who has been tried in public office and not found wanting. The record of the years affords reason for the belief that Calvin Coolidge is equal to the exacting duties of the presidency.

DIES AFTER MANY YEARS OF ILLNESS

End of Life's Journey Came Thursday Night to Mrs. Miriam Worthington—Member of Pioneer Jacksonville Family

Death came at 10:15 o'clock Thursday night to Mrs. Miriam Worthington at Passavant hospital, ending a long period of illness. It was in January, 1917, that Mrs. Worthington suffered a stroke of apoplexy and she had been practically an invalid since that time, although her active mind retained its strength to the end. About five weeks since the deceased suffered a second stroke and at that time she was taken to Passavant hospital, where she grew gradually worse and friends realized that her condition was critical.

Mrs. Worthington was a daughter of Isaac L. Morrison and Anna Tucker Morrison, who came to Jacksonville in 1851 and whose names were prominently identified with the life of Jacksonville in the subsequent half century.

Mr. Morrison had wide fame as a lawyer of brilliant intellect and his daughter, now deceased, had a heritage of mentality that was far from the usual. As a young woman Mrs. Worthington was a student at Jacksonville Athenaeum and later because of her particular interest in art was in New York city for an extended period for work and study with the Art Students' league. Still later she further pursued her art studies in Dresden and at the Academy Julianne in Paris.

The marriage of the deceased to the late Hon. Thomas Worthington was solemnized Nov. 16, 1892. Mr. Worthington, prominent for years as an attorney and in the political life of the district and state, passed away Feb. 15, 1922. Their only son, Morrison Worthington, survives.

Mrs. Worthington from the days of young womanhood was a member of Trinity Episcopal church and actively identified with various branches of the church work. She was a woman of most kindly and generous instincts and there are many in Jacksonville who thru the years have known the genuineness of her charity. Positive in her own opinions, she was particularly frank and open in their expression, and her unswerving devotion to principle was a reason for admiration. Mrs. Worthington was a strong woman who met life bravely.

The arrangements for the funeral have not been fully completed but it will occur at the residence on Grove street probably Sunday afternoon.

DR. R. F. THRAPP IS SPEAKER AT KIWANIS

Committees Give Reports—Dean Scott Talks—Vocal Solos by Miss Franz.

Dr. Russell F. Thrapp of Seattle, Washington was the principal speaker for Jacksonville Kiwanis Club yesterday at their noon day luncheon at Peacock Inn. Dr. Thrapp's speech was regarding the relation of church to community building. During the course of his address he suggested that the most significant name for Jacksonville's new hotel was "The Elms."

The reports from Kiwanis committees were heard, Robert Mullen reporting for the attendance committee; Lee Sullivan for the public affairs committee; John Larson for the membership committee and Fred Capps for the classification committee.

Dean George H. Scott of Illinois College spoke to the members of the club on the meaning of Kiwanis.

Keith Montgomery told of a motor trip through northern Wisconsin and Minnesota.

Special music for the meeting was furnished by Miss Hilga Franz of Chicago, who is visiting her parents Mr. and Mrs. Will Franz. Miss Franz who formerly resided here and is a graduate of local schools, is an accomplished soprano soloist. Her selections were greatly enjoyed by the club members and heartily encored.

Dr. Thrapp told the Kiwanians something of the large realm of service now being entered by organizations of its type. He spoke of the vital relations existing between church and community, telling how the former is obligated to the latter, with a responsibility for service far beyond its present efforts to meet the obligation.

The speaker recalled his work as a pastor in this city, speaking of a number of men with whom he had been associated here.

CLARK PROPERTY AT MURRAYVILLE BURNS

Fire Destroyed Vacant House Late Last Night—Belonged to E. L. Clark of This City—Loss Estimated at $4,000

A valuable residence property belonging to E. L. Clark, 311 North Prairie street, and located in Murrayville, was totally destroyed by fire at 11:25 o'clock last night. The house was unoccupied and the origin of the fire is unknown. The building was a large two story frame structure of seven rooms and several large porches. The loss is estimated at $4,000, partially covered by insurance.

Murrayville residents fought the blaze for sometime before it could be brought under control. It was thought for a time that the homes of Henry Seymour and Miss Lulu Coultas, located to the right and left of the burning building, would also be destroyed. The blaze scorched the weatherboarding on these houses.

The house had been vacant for several months. It was formerly occupied by Dr. Ben Jollday, who conducted a drug store in Murrayville. This store was destroyed in the fire which visited the village last fall, and Dr. Jollday moved to other parts. The house had not been occupied since his departure.

Mr. Clark did not learn of the fire until informed at midnight by a telephone message from the Journal. He stated that the property was partially protected by insurance and that it could not be replaced at the present time for less than $6,000.

Mr. and Mrs. J. Clyde Metz of Toledo motored into Jacksonville yesterday for an extended visit with Mr. Metz's parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Metz of West Oak street. Their niece, Miss Alberta Westrope of North Fayette street who has been visiting in Toledo returned to Jacksonville with them.

Miss Frances Ryan was a city shopper from Franklin yesterday.

To Tire Users of Morgan County

A manufactured article which depends entirely on workmanship and material, made on a quantity-production basis, is very apt to vary in quality.

The effort at uniformity of product is therefore responsible for the slightly increased cost of goods offered for sale.

To you as a user of tires, one tire means everything. If it is a good one you have pleasure and safety. If a poor one you have grief and danger.

Are you sure the tire you purchased at a few dollars saving is a good one? Are you sure if you go back where you got it the merchant will be there and still be selling that brand?

It is for the reasons set out above we have handled a quality tire, made by an organization that want to deliver to you what you pay for, that is, "every tire 100% a tire."

If you too are trying to do your part 100% and appreciate quality and fair dealing, come on and join us. We are both going the same way.

Mother Gives Facts
About Her Sons Case

How the health of her 17-year old son was entirely restored by the Tanlac treatment after months of illness is related by Mrs. Ljane Liddle, 1506 E. Washington St., Springfield, Ill.

"My son was in a terribly run-down condition," says Mrs. Liddle, "and after several months of first one treatment and then another he was compelled to give up his work. He was very nervous, and was getting weaker all the time. He did not eat or sleep much, and complained of feeling tired all the time."

began to show improvement almost immediately. His nervousness disappeared, he sleeps like a top and he eats so it seems like I can't get him filled up. Best of all, he has gained several pounds weight, and is now back at work and feeling fine."

Tanlac is for sale by all good druggists. Accept no substitute. Over 37 million bottles sold.

Tanlac Vegetable Pills are Nature's own remedy for constipation. For sale everywhere.

TWELVE HOUR DAY
IN STEEL MAKING
TO BE ELIMINATED

Change to be Made As Rapidly as Labor
Supply Will Permit—Will Require Sixty Thousand Additional Men and Add Forty-Five Million Dollars to the Payrolls

NEW YORK, Aug. 2.—Elimination of the twelve-hour day in the steel industry will begin immediately and wages of employees whose hours are reduced from 12 to 8 hours will be so adjusted as to afford earnings equivalent to a 25 per cent increase in hourly and base rates, directors of the American Iron & Steel Institute decided today.

Elbert H. Gary, president of the institute and chairman of the United States Steel Corporation in making the formal announcement at the conclusion of today's conferences, said the change would be effective as rapidly as the supply of labor would permit. He said it was impossible to say when the changes would be completed but declared there would be no unnecessary delay on the part of anyone.

It is estimated that the shorter working day will necessitate the employment of between 60,000 and 65,000 additional laborers and will add approximately $45,000,000 to the annual payroll of the industry.

Employees in the continuous process departments who now receive $4.80 for a 12 hour day will receive $4 for an eight hour day under the plan. All other workmen, it was announced, will be on 10 hours or less and their present hourly and base rate will be continued.

The Work Started
Officials of both the independent steel companies represented in the institute and of United States Steel corporation subsidiaries departed for their homes tonight to begin at once the work of effecting the shift in hours.

Today's action by steel officials representing substantially the entire industry in this country, brought to a favorable conclusion a series of conferences and study of the industry which began when President Harding at a white house dinner, requested Mr. Gary to undertake an investigation to ascertain the feasibility of eliminating the long hours.

A committee appointed by Mr. Gary reported at the May meeting of the American Iron & Steel Institute that it would be impossible to reduce hours in the immediate future because of the shortage of labor.

President Harding publicly expressed his disappointment at the report and subsequently Mr. Gary wrote the president that the industry would begin the elimination of the much criticised 12-hour shift "as soon as practicable."

Gary's Formal Statement
The formal statement by Mr. Gary follows:

"Following the correspondence between President Harding and the Steel Institute, and as a result of the most painstaking investigation, manufacturers of iron and steel, representing substantially the entire industry of the country will now begin the total elimination of the 12 hour day and will progress as rapidly as the supply of labor will permit."

"It is impossible to say when the changes will be completed. It will depend upon labor conditions at respective plants. There will be no unnecessary delay on the part of anyone."

"When the hours of employees connected with continuous process are reduced from 12 to 8 hours their wage rates will be so adjusted as to afford earnings equivalent to a 25 per cent increase in hourly and base rates."

Will Adjust Earnings
"All other workmen will be on 10 hours or less and their present hourly and base rates will be continued; but whenever it is practicable by promotions or changes in positions the daily earnings will be adjusted."

Officials differ as to the effect of the change in hours on the total production cost. Estimates range from $3 to $4 a ton. For the industry as a whole it has been estimated the shorter hours will add approximately fifteen per cent to the cost of the finished product.

Some of the smaller companies already have established the 8-hour day, but the changes have not been effective over a long enough period to furnish definite data, it is said.

Eugene G. Grace, president of the Bethlehem Steel corporation, stated recently that his company was making progress on plans to eliminate the long working day. In that company the plans are being evolved thru a series of conferences with the employees.

VICE PRESIDENT
COOLIDGE TO BE NEXT PRESIDENT

John Tyler, the first president to enter the white house as a result of the death of his predecessor, was in the capital when he was summoned to his new responsibilities and took the oath in the presence of the cabinet after he had been notified by the secretary of state.

Millard Fillmore also was notified by the cabinet and he took the oath the following day in the Hall of the House of Representatives in the presence of members of senate and house.

Andrew Johnson was sworn in at his room at a hotel here after the death of President Lincoln at whose death bed most of the cabinet members had been present. In that case notification was informal and immediate.

In the case of President Arthur the oath was taken at his residence in New York City the day after the day of President Garfield and was administered a second time two days later in the vice-president's room at the capitol.

Vice-President Roosevelt was hunting in the Adirondacks when news that President McKinley had passed away from the wounds inflicted by his assassin at Buffalo. Mr. Roosevelt secured a wagon to take him to the nearest railway 40 miles distance. After three changes of horses he reached the station late in the afternoon and was sworn in that same night in Buffalo.

Altho it was after midnight before the news of President Harding's death had been circulated generally thruout Washington, many messages of condolence began to pour into the white house.

BRYAN DISCUSSES
UNDERWOOD'S CHANCE

(By the Associated Press)

MIAMI, Fla., Aug. 2.—Senator Oscar W. Underwood's availability as a candidate for the democratic presidential nomination will depend on the platform adopted by the democrats, William J. Bryan is quoted as saying in an article published in the News Metropolis here today. Mr. Bryan's signed statement said:

"As Senator Underwood has formally announced his candidacy I answer your inquiry. His availability will depend entirely upon the platform adopted next year. If Wall street and the 'wets' control the convention and write the platform they will doubtless regard Senator Underwood as the logical candidate. He is wotter than Governor Smith and has for a long time been the spokesman of that element. He also represents Wall street point of view on public questions. But Wall street and the wets are not likely to control the next convention."

"There is no objection to a southern candidate and there are many prominent southern democrats who are in sympathy with the sentiment of the democratic party. Why not select one of these—for instance, Daniels of North Carolina; Comer of Alabama, or Neff of Texas? Every southern state can furnish an available southern democrat who can poll several million more votes than Senator Underwood. He was not available in 1912 and is much less available now."

Schroller, aged 50, met the same fate today when his team became frightened at a train and ran away on the same run. The two men had long indulged in friendly competition to gain possession of the run and when John Collins, Schroller's friend was killed, Schroller was given the job.

SEVERSON REPLIES TO GOVERNOR ON SCANDAL CHARGES

Claims Wisconsin Executive Trying to Sidestep the Issue

(By the Associated Press)
MADISON, Wis., Aug. 2.—Senator H. J. Severson of Iowa, answered the demand of Gov. J. J. Blaine that he furnish proof of alleged attacks by public officials on girls in the Wisconsin capitol by charging that the governor previously killed two attempts on the part of the legislature to investigate conditions and asserting that he will furnish his facts to a special session if called. Severson did not set out information he may have in his reply.

Answer in Detail
Following is the answer of Severson in full:

"Your telegram, pretending to ask information in regard to women who were assaulted at the capitol is received. As you will know this information and proof was all embodied within the scope of two proposed investigations in the senate both of which you opposed and succeeded in defeating."

"You were so interested in their defeat that your private secretary even lobbied in the senate against their passage. Now, after the legislature had adjourned and after you have been a party to defeating two investigations which would have disclosed the information you are asking for, you ask that I try this matter out before you and that you act as judge in a case where you have appeared on the other side. It is a rule of law that an attorney or an interested party shall not be allowed to decide his own case or any case in which he has an interest."

Cannot Hear Case
"This rule applies with special force to you. Further, governor, you will recall that some of the charges that we made on the floor of the senate and around which this investigation somewhat centered were directed against you and they were of such a serious nature that you were forced into the newspapers in your defense. Inasmuch as some of these charges concern yourself, I submit you should not be allowed to sit in judgment in your own case. Your political smoke screen is too thin. The people will see thru you."

"Your suggestion that I take this matter into court is second-handed and I think about worn out. Both Lorimer and Newberry have used this lame excuse before you discovered it. In Illinois when they set about the investigation the deplorable conditions of the Lorimer crowd, and in Michigan when they set about to investigate the disreputable Newberry they both like yourself pointed toward the court. It is unfortunate that the governor of Wisconsin feels forced to hide behind a defense of this kind."

Proper Investigation
"You know as well as I do that the proper and legal channel for an investigation of this kind is thru the legislature. It has been published generally in the press that you will call a special session about October 1 and I wish to assure you that I will again introduce a resolution to investigate the deplorable condition which now exists under your rule. I want to, if possible, clean up a situation in the capitol which has become a disgrace to the state and a public scandal."

DEPLORES HANDLING
LYNCHING PROBLEM

Asheville, N. C., Aug. 2.—Resolutions deploring what was termed the failure of the state governments to handle properly the lynching problem were adopted unanimously by the commission on inter-racial co-operation which is in session here.

The resolution drew no distinction between various sections of the country and deplored failure to stamp out lynching, which was termed "the most conspicuous enemy to justice and righteousness and the most flagrant violation of the constitution of our great nation."

FALLS NINETEEN STORIES

Chicago, Aug. 2.—Irwin Nye of Janesville, Wis., fell to his death this morning from the 19th floor of a downtown hotel here. He suffered a fracture of the skull which caused his death, a few moments after his body was found lying on the roof of an adjoining building 10 floors below by another guest at the hotel.

ORDERS ALL BASE BALL POOLS SHUT

(By the Associated Press)

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., Aug. 2.—(By A. P.)—Mayor Bullard of Springfield today directed Chief of Police John E. George to "positively close" all base ball pools and other gambling places in Springfield, and institute action against proprietors. His action, he announced, was supported by an opinion from the city counsel.

Continual complaint of open violation of laws by the base ball pool managers, induced the mayor to order them closed, he said. It was pointed out that although there is a city ordinance against gambling, the pools in Springfield have steadily gained in popularity until now they are continually crowded by persons making up their cards.

It costs 25 cents for a card, which often has drawn a pool of more than $200. A new pool is created by each proprietor each day, it is said.

Members of the president's party said it was probable that the president's body would leave San Francisco Friday evening but that it was impossible to make a definite announcement tonight because of the absence from the city of George B. Christian, Jr., the executive secretary. Neither were members of the party able to say whether the body would be taken to Marion, or to Washington but will remain at the hotel until removed directly to the train.

The news of President Harding's death swept through his hotel and out of San Francisco with almost electrical suddenness. Hotel officials among the first to whom word of the tragic event was given, immediately had the great blue presidential flag with its gold seal of the United States hauled down and then raised again to half staff.

A minute or two later an assistant manager rushed into Rose Bowl room where a dinner dance was in progress raised a hand and stopped the orchestras playing.

Announcement of the death of the executive followed and the dancers their gay dress a sad contrast to their expressions of gravity, gathered into little groups, obtained their wraps and departed.

Gather in Groups

The news passed from lip to lip. Some guests, more curious than their fellows gathered in groups at the ends of corridors leading to the presidential rooms and gazed down the halls at the screen, which shut off view of the suite where the twenty ninth president of the United States lay silent in death.

Cabinet officers, headed by Secretary Hoover of the commerce department hastened up and down the hall, hastening to express their condolences to Mrs. Harding or hurrying back for hasty conferences among themselves or with other government officials.

Lieutenant Commander Joel T. Boone, assistant physician to the president hurried up from downstairs where a newspaperman had found him in response to Mrs. Harding's frantic appeals.

Rumors began to fly about, each wilder than its predecessors and all denied soon after by official bulletins which were issued as rapidly as the executive officials could ascertain the facts and type them on paper to a steadily increasing crowd of newspapermen which thronged the corridors and congested doorways near the death chamber.

The shock of the president's death struck the city with dumbness. Newspapers whose entire front pages were devoted to half a dozen words telling the news of which had been rushed from the press too fast for more than a picture and phrase. "Harding dead" circulated like wildfire thru the downtown districts and even far out on the residential streets within a few minutes after the official bulletin announcing the death had been issued.

They brought a shock to crowds which, a few minutes before were sure that the city's distinguished guest was well on the way to recovery, had started out to spend the evening at theaters, dances or other amusements.

Even before that reports of the death had spread far and the telephone switchboard at the hotel became jammed with outgoing official calls and incoming inquiries for information concerning the report.

Friends Gather Quickly.

National, state and party officials came hurrying to the hotel in numbers and gathered for conferences in eighth floor rooms or corridors near the presidential suite to discuss what should be or must be done. One or two secret service men who had been out for a few hours of relaxation hurried back to aid in handling a situation made more difficult by its suddenness.

Everyone who came from the presidential suite was besieged with questions, official, newspaper and merely curious. None could add much to the information already given out officially.

Largely this was because the end came with such shocking suddenness that comparatively few of its details had been noted.

Several minutes of the president's last quarter hour alive were devoted, as has been much of his life, to childhood and its interests.

Girls Bring Flowers.

Two little girls came to the presidential suite just before 7 o'clock with flowers seeking to present them to the president. Mrs. Harding, who shares the president's lifelong love of children, graciously came from the sick room to speak a word to the two tots and accepted their gift. Returning to the president she took with her a few of the blossoms and these were in the room a few minutes later when he died.

It was at a dinner given to night at the home of Representative Julius Kahn in honor of the distinguished visitors that the news of the president's death was received. It was not at first credited by the party which included General John J. Pershing, but verification was obtained by telephone.

Col. E. C. Stanton, author of the greeting "LaFayette We Are Here," was discussing the president's good fortune in recovering from his illness so quickly when the fatal news came.

The dinner was attended by 20 members of the Harding party. Secretary Work met with several of the other cabinet members in a room on the seventh floor, immediately below that on which the presidential suite is located to arrange details. Col. W. W. Shipley, district passenger agent of the Baltimore & Ohio railroad and in charge of the train which carried the president on his ill-fated journey, and Paul Shoup, vice-president of the Southern Pacific railroad also met in conference.

Even after the president was dead telegrams which have been coming ever since his illness, all expressing hopes for his recovery or gratification that he had made such satisfactory progress was continuing to flow in.

A minute or two after his death a messenger brought in a large bundle of them.

Several of the state and national figures who hurried to the presidential suite to express their sympathy and leave condolences later issued formal statements on the president's death.

Among those who did so was Representative Charles F. Curry of California, who said:

"President Harding was a patriotic American and a genuine true Christian. His passing will be not only a national, but an international calamity."

"We mourn his passing and pray that his successor will carry out his policies."

"For his family we have the greatest sympathy and pray God that He will protect the Republic in its hour of need."

Only an hour or two before his death, President Harding was carrying on, though not in person, one of the activities to which he had looked forward as one of the most pleasant duties of his abandoned trip. This was the presentation of the Traveling Beausant of the Knights Templar to the Hollywood Commandery.

In this action the president, as the representative of his own commandery, Marion, was to have delivered the emblem to the California body of his fellow Knights as one step of its journey round the world, passing from commandery to commandery across continents and oceans.

But his illness had intervened and, rather than that the presentation should not be made at the appointed time he had sent his secretary, George B. Christian, Jr., also a Knight Templar to perform the duty.

Secretary Christian left for Los Angeles last night and this afternoon read the address the president had prepared for the occasion to his fellow Knights Templar and delivered the beausant to their keeping.

Tonight he was on his way back from Los Angeles at the time the president died and did not learn of that event for some time afterward when urgent telegrams caught his train as it approached Central California on the run north.

The confusion which reigned for some little time immediately after news of the president's death became known, died down as the capable hands of the president's advisers and associates took over the reins and the decisions that had to be made began to be decided.

Crowds Quiet

Two hours after the end came the crowds had diminished to little knots; the groups of curious idlers in the corridor ends had vanished.

Outside the hotel policemen prevented hundreds of persons from entering the building. Only guests and newspapermen were being admitted.

Great Britain was the first foreign power to pay its respects to the dead president. C. H. Campbell, general of Great Britain in San Francisco called at the presidential suite on behalf of Gerald Campbell, consul general.

Mr. Campbell, he said, was out of town and would arrive tomorrow to pay formal respects on behalf of Great Britain.

INTERESTING HIGH LIGHTS ON THE LIFE OF WARREN GAMALIEL HARDING

(By the Associated Press)

Warren G. Harding brought to the presidency an infinite patience and kindness in dealing with public questions and men, which enabled him to handle the problems of government without the stress and worry which had handicapped many of his predecessors.

Whatever else historians may say of him there probably will be little dispute that few chief executives came to office in peace time facing problems more complex in their nature or greater in number. All international affairs were unbalanced as never before, with many principal settlements of the great war still to be effected. At home the work of reconstruction had only just begun, with business depressed, agriculture prostrate and unemployment general.

How Mr. Harding measured up to the task before him must be left to the historian, but his friends said that coming to the presidency as he did with an open mind, a desire for counsel and an intimate knowledge of the processes of government acquired in his services in the senate, he was the type of man needed for the job at such a time.

Preaching upon every occasion the doctrine of Americanism, he set his face resolutely against "entangling alliances." While adhering to what he was pleased to term the principles of the founding fathers, he nevertheless lent the moral assistance of the government in the efforts to bind up the wounds of the world.

That influence was once declared by him to be not inconceivable, and so America under his guidance had a part, silent though it was in the main, in effecting the settlements of many vexing world questions. Its chief contribution was the Washington arms conference at which the principal powers, covenanted to limit the size of their navies and thus lift from tax weary peoples the burden of maintaining the race for naval supremacy.

Along with the proffer of counsel in effecting world settlements went an insistence that American rights be recognized. In polished phrase, but with a directness of expression that was not to be misconstrued, the world was given to understand from the very first of the Harding administration that the United States, freely respecting the rights of the other nations asked for herself only that to which she was entitled in simple justice, and that she could accept nothing less.

While in his dealings with congress Mr. Harding preferred the role of counselor rather than dictator, he speedily removed any doubt that his gift of patience denoted any lack of purpose once he had charted a course. Thus he told congress that soldiers' bonus legislation either should carry the means of financing or be postponed, and when the legislators put aside his advice he promptly vetoed the bill they sent him.

His tenacity of purpose was further exemplified in his continual pounding for economy in public expenditures and again in his insistence that congress pass the merchant marine aid bill with a view to curtailing the continual drain which the operation of the war-built commercial fleet had become upon the Treasury. His greatest single effort in the field of domestic legislation was in behalf of this measure.

Not infrequently Mr. Harding was called upon to play the role of peacemaker in governmental affairs. He intervened in a dispute between Congress and the Treasury as to the form general tax revision was to take, and the program he approved was carried out in the main with a reduction of more than half a billion in the nation's tax burden.

Likewise his counsel settled the long controversy between the House and Senate on the question of American valuation in the tariff law. He proposed in its place a flexible tariff arrangement under which the Tariff Commission was given authority with his approval to increase or lower rates within prescribed limitations. Upon signing the bill, the President declared it constituted the greatest tariff reform in American history.

Mr. Harding came of hardy pioneer stock. He was born at Blooming Grove, Morrow county, Ohio, November 2, 1855, the son of a country doctor, George T. Harding. Like most country boys he went to country school, between morning and night chores and later attended college at Iberia, Ohio. He tried school teaching for a year, but having had a smell of printers' ink while sticking type for his college paper, the lure drew him into the newspaper field.

His family meantime had moved to Marion, in an adjoining county, where he obtained his first newspaper job, and where his life interests were centered thereafter, become a publisher, and it was realized at the age of 19 when he bid in the Marion Star at a sheriff's sale. The paper was purchased under a heavy mortgage and his friends have often said that the struggles and hardships which were his in making this paper a success had much to do in fashioning his character and developing a broad patience and tolerance which were his chief characteristics.

Whatever his other attainments, Mr. Harding's greatest pride was in his professional accomplishments and training as printer, editor and publisher. Nor did the interest and exacting duties of his high office serve to dull his delight in pottering about a composing room. On his first trip back home after his inauguration, he went to the Star office, pulled off his coat, rolled up his sleeves, borrowed a clew of tobacco and helped "make up" the paper. His luck charm was a printer's rule, carried always in a pocket.

As his ambition had carried him into the ranks of publishers, so his fancy took him into the realm of politics. From the first he was an ardent partisan, and his insistence upon wearing a "stove pipe" hat, the badge of support of James G. Blaine, while a reporter on a Democratic newspaper brought him a sharp reprimand from his chief, who held it to be inconsistent for a worker on a Democratic paper to be so prominently displaying the symbol of his Republicanism.

The future President's ability as a stump speaker won him early recognition from his local party leaders. Marion county then was in the Democratic column and he undertook to switch it to the Republican party, but his first effort at office on his party ticket resulted in a defeat, though he commanded an unexpected vote.

Mr. Harding's first political office was that of Ohio State Senator, to which he was elected at the age of 34. He served two terms and later was elected Lieutenant Governor of his state. In 1910 he sought the governorship, but was defeated. Four years later he was elected to the United States Senate where he served six years, much of the time as a member of the important Foreign Relations Committee. From this place he was elevated to the Presidency, the first Senator to be elected Chief Executive.

Early in his years of political service he met William McKinley, to whom his close friends have most often likened him, and with whom he had in common a predominant passion for obliteration of class and sectional lines. A friendship sprang up between the two men. Mr. Harding also was close in later days to Theodore Roosevelt, Senators Foraker and Penrose and others high in his party councils.

The President was a life-long Baptist and was a trustee of his home church in Marion. He also had been a member of the Elk and Moose fraternities for years, and after his election as President he became a thirty-second degree Mason and Shriner.

Golf was his favorite recreation, but he also liked to fish, although his opportunities for that sport were limited after he came to the White House. He played hard and possessed the faculty of putting all his worries behind him during his recreation hours.

CHANGE ANNOUNCED IN INCOME TAX RULES

An important change in the Federal income tax regulations has just been made that affects owners of bonds and banking institutions according to M. L. Seidman, tax expert of Seidman and Seidman, Certified Public Accountants.

"As a result of the treasury decision that was just released," Mr. Seidman explained, "it is no longer necessary for the owners of bonds to file an ownership certificate at the time of presenting interest coupons for payment, except in the case of bonds containing a tax-free covenant clause, or where the owner of the bond is a non-resident alien, and it is no longer necessary for banks to see to it that such ownership certificates accompany interest coupons."

Heretofore as the regulation stood, ownership certificates were required to accompany interest coupons in all cases except for domestic and resident corporations. By the new amendment individuals, firms, and fiduciaries need no longer make out these certificates, except in the case of a tax free covenant bond.

"Furthermore, ownership certificates need not be made out even in the case of registered bonds," Mr. Seidman added, "unless those bonds contain a tax-free covenant clause. Under the former regulations ownership certificates were required in connection with the interest on registered bonds the same as interest on any other class of bonds."

"Just why the Department has seen fit to dispense with these ownership certificates has not been announced. They were originally intended as a means of checking up the tax returns of the owners of the bonds for the purpose of determining whether the income from the bonds was properly reported. Apparently the Department has concluded that this check-up can be made without the use of ownership certificates, or else it found this method of check-up impractical."

"In any event, however," Mr. Seidman concluded, "it is no longer necessary, under the amendment, to present ownership certificates with the interest coupons in the case of residents or citizens unless the bond contains a tax-free covenant clause."

Sudden Departure Creates Consternation in Havana

(By the Associated Press)

HAVANA, Cuba, Aug. 2.—The sailing for Washington today of Ambassador Crowder has created something like consternation in political circles in Havana and is the principal topic of conversation. It is said he plans to be absent a month.

Altho the ambassador has not said a single word about the subject that calls him to his country's headquarters, there is a world of "information" to be had on all sides.

El Heraldo de Cuba says the ambassador goes to report on the lottery which was passed over Presidency Zayas veto with the accompaniment of a resolution hinting that foreign interference had to do with the veto.

Washington, Aug. 2.—Ambassador Crowder's trip to Washington was said officially today to be subject to the interpretation that the Washington government desires of getting at first hand a full understanding of the situation in Cuba. The government spokesman would not go beyond that in explanation of the summons to General Crowder.

It was pointed out that the only interest of the United States in its relationship with the Cuban government rested upon the desire that Cuba should maintain an independent government based upon sound financial and economic policies. The only motive underlying whatever action the United States has taken it was added is the desire for the good of Cuba as an independent stable, and self-respecting nation.

SPECIAL MUSICAL SCORES FOR BLIND

L. W. Rodenberg's Work Results in System That Is of Great Aid to Blind of Nation.

Five years ago L. W. Rodenberg, printer at the State School for the Blind in this city began experiments to perfect a system of musical scores for the blind. In 1923 his device has been accepted by all the leading institutions for the blind in the United States, and the school at Jacksonville now publishes more music than any other institution in America.

Formerly, when a blind musician would run his fingers over the embossed dots of his score, he could read only notes designed for the left hand without the slightest knowledge of what the composition as a whole would sound like. Then he had to go back to find out what the right hand's part was like, since each score was printed, separately.

The English devised a different system by which they placed the treble and base alternately. That is, there would be a few lines for the left hand and then a few for the right hand, but even this innovation did not please the blind musicians who wanted to study the full score of the composition as they proceeded.

Mr. Rodenberg devised 18 different systems while he conducted his experiments and submitted them to teachers of the blind throughout the country, asking them to select the one which seemed most practicable.

The system chosen has been received with acclamation by the blind musicians everywhere, and the presses at Jacksonville are kept busy meeting the demand for music written according to the new system.

It sounds simple enough, according to Mr. Rodenberg. He calls it "the bar over bar" method. Instead of printing the whole composition for the left hand and then following the music from the right, after the manner of a puzzle in which the two parts must be pieced together, Mr. Rodenberg follows the conventional method of printing music.

On the top line of the page printed the score for left hand, just underneath he places the right hand score. Thus a blind musician can read with both hands at once and get a perfect idea of what the composition as a whole will sound like.

INTERESTING QUESTIONS AT WOMEN VOTERS MEET

"Your Town." Subject at Ninth Precinct Meeting—No Other Meeting Till Chautauqua Is Over

At a meeting of the Citizenship Round Table of the 9th precinct of the Illinois League of Women Voters held at the residence of Mrs. A. L. Adams recently the first of a number of sets of questions on "Your Town," were answered. The questions are furnished by the National League of Women Voters and comprise all the issues that arise in connection with local political affairs. Topics to be discussed in this question form in the future are:

"Homes and Living Costs," "Health," "Education," "Industry and Workers," "Recreation and Social Hygiene," "Care of the Dependent and the Delinquent," "Streets, Transportation and Public Utilities," "Courts and Juries," "Local Government."

At the meeting recently the following ladies answered questions: Mrs. Mary Turner Carriel, Miss Alice Williams, Mrs. W. C. Bradish, Mrs. A. L. Adams, Mrs. Lillian I. Danskin and Miss Clara Cobb. There will be no meeting of the 9th precinct circle until after chautauqua, but a well known public woman will give citizenship addresses at the chautauqua every morning and the women of the League of Women Voters are expected to hear her as often as possible.

The questions answered at the last meeting were:

History and Population
When did the first settlers come to your community?

Why did they stay?

Did they give permanent character to the community?

What was the population in 1910? In 1920?

Has the growth of the population been gradual or rapid? How do you account for such growth?

What percentage of the population is foreign born?

How many negroes are there? What brought the immigrants to your community?

What nationalities are represented and in what proportions? What proportion of the population does not speak English?

How many unassimilated immigrants are there?

What aid is given to the immigrant who desires to become a citizen?

In what court or courts are aliens naturalized?

Do your foreign born residents live in compact groups or are they scattered throughout the town?

What have the foreign born contributed to life in your town?

Have your foreign born contributed to your understanding of present European problems?

Has your town a character or influence which is marked in comparing it with other towns nearby? If so, what is such a difference due?

How do the natural resources of your town compare with those of its neighboring community?

Do you have any co-operative relations other than business with nearby communities?

What objects of natural and historic interests are there in your community?

What part has your community played in the history of the state?

PREPARE FOR PAVING IN SOUTH JACKSONVILLE

South Jacksonville proposes to proceed with the laying of an asphalt pavement from Michigan avenue south to the Vandallia road. The board of local improvements at a meeting Wednesday night recommended the passing of an ordinance. Subsequently a meeting of the board was held and the ordinance recommended by the board of local improvements passed.

The proper steps will be taken in the matter of filing petition in the county court. It is expected that the proceedings will move along without opposition and that a commission will be appointed to spread the assessment.

Under the proposed plan the state will pay 20 percent of the costs if the pavement meets certain required specifications.

The board of local improvements of the village includes S. L. Perry, president, O. B. Heint, D. Kopmeyer, William Hemmrough, Otto Buhrman, James McGinnis and O. Coultas.

Market Report

UNSETTLED MARKET
DUE HEAVY SELLING

FINANCIAL.
Total stock sales 556,100
shares.
Twenty industrials averaged 88.20; net gain .24.
High 1923—105.38; low
86.91.
Twenty railroads averaged 77.24; net loss .63.
High 1923—90.63; low
76.85.

NEW YORK, August 2.—
Heavy selling of the railroad shares unsettled today's stock market. Trading, however, was relatively dull with the large bulk of the day's business coming from professional sources.

French and Belgian francs dropped to new low records for the year in response to Premier Baldwin's speech in the house of commons setting forth that there was no hope of an agreement between Great Britain and France on German reparations.

The French franc sank to 5.71 cents, or within a point of the low of all time, and the Belgian franc was down to 4.57½ but both rallied later.

There was nothing new in the day's news to account for the selling of the rails. Northwestern rails were again the hardest hit, bear operators laying stress on the failure of several of the large systems to earn their fixed charges in recent months. Rail officials pointed out that the first six months of the year were always the worst for those roads and that large sums have been spent for equipment this spring and summer to get them in shape for moving the heavy traffic this fall. Rumors of new financing by the St. Paul system also were circulated during the day but these lacked confirmation.

Great Northern preferred dropped 3½ to 54, the lowest quotation since 1896, and St. Paul preferred, Rock Island common and six and seven per cent preferred; Northern Pacific and Union Pacific sold off one to three points.

The average of 20 leading industrials showed a slight gain on the day but United States Steel, Alcoa, American Can and some of the other so-called pivotal stocks registered fractional recessions after having sold one to two points above yesterday's closing prices.

There was heavy buying for the short account in the early part of the session as a result of the unusually favorable earnings reports recently published by United States Steel, American Locomotive, General Motors, Bethlehem Steel, Studebaker and other large industrial concerns.

Selling of the rails in the face of a report of record-breaking carloadings for the week ending
July 21 was somewhat of a surprise.

Speculative fear of radical road legislation in the next congress was regarded as a factor in this liquidation.

United States government bonds held steady.

PARROTS TAUGHT TO 'TALK'

Skill and Patience Required to Turn Out Birds That Can Be Sold to Advantage.

There are quite a number of people who make a living by teaching parrots to talk. It is a task that requires patience and skill. Each bird is put in a cage by himself and covered with a bag, which prevents the parrot from seeing out and at the same time admits sufficient light. Then the "school-master" stands in front of the cages, and says what he wants the birds to learn. The words are repeated once a minute.

Sometimes this repetition goes on for several hours before the pupil begins to do anything else but scream, but at last he begins to murmur the words.

As soon as one bird can say the words without a mistake the master's work is done, for the pupil will soon teach the words to all the other occupants of the room. They are left in the covered cages for a day, and at the end of that time every parrot will know the words thoroughly.

Then the creatures have to be taught when to say the words. Let us suppose that the lesson was "Come and kiss me." The bags are lifted off the cages by a number of pretty girls. They are the first people the parrots see, and consequently each bird connects the words with a pretty girl, and ever afterward uses the sentence in this connection.

SNAKES PLENTIFUL IN BUSH

Residents Set Traps for Unpleasant Intruders, and Lure Them to Their Death.

"Women in Queensland," says Miss Puxley, a young English woman, author of "Wanderings in the Queensland Bush," "often set traps for snakes which have entered houses, in the shape of a frog left hopping about or a saucer full of poisoned milk. These are sure draws the snakes being killed while resting after the meal." She then tells the story of a friend of hers, who was standing in the doorway of her house when a snake, having seen a saucer of milk just behind her, pushed past her to reach this dainty. She quickly closed the door when it was half-way through, and so broke its back. This was one of the deadly black snakes of Queensland. Another bit of information about snakes, which Miss Puxley gives, is the fact that because of the angle at which a certain snake's teeth are set it is impossible for him to stop swallowing anything once he has really begun. So it happens that two snakes, which may have started out on a killing in a spirit of camaraderie, may each begin swallowing at one end of their prey, but when they have reached the middle there is nothing to do except to continue, and the snake with the largest mouth is forced to include his less fortunate companion of the chase in his meal.

Insect Radio Carrier.

The modern radio fan is advised to consult the gall midge, a minute fly, and other forms of insect life. By E. Porter Felt, New York state entomologist, who calls attention to the antennae or "feelers," of some insects and radio receiving sets. The loop antennae, such as are used in indoor receiving sets, find almost exact counterpart in the construction of the antennae of the little insects, and Doctor Felt suggests that they were designed to catch faint vibrations of the air.

These receiving sets from Nature's own laboratory are carried wholly by the male insects, Doctor Felt states, and their probable purpose is to enable them to hear the plaintive love call of the female from great distances. While the male gall midge carries the most complete model of a receiving set that is known in the insect world, the female makes no noise that is audible to human ears.

Avoid Habit of Worrying.

Worry is a form of friction. The task of the expert in life is to run his machine with the maximum of activity and the minimum of friction. If he stops or slows the machine, because he cannot otherwise deal with the friction, then life has beaten him. The general human tendency is to stop friction by partially stopping the machine—especially after what is loosely called "success" has been attained. Real success in life is the full smooth-running exploitation of the whole machine with daily satisfaction to the mechanic. And nothing else is real success in life.—Arnold Bennett.

Sheep's Important Place in World.

One man alone could not look after a whole flock, so the first shepherd called in others, who lived in scattered huts or in caves, far apart, to assist him, offering in return a share of the wool and the meat that were now so easy to obtain. And so at the edge of the pastures the first villages grew up. Thanks, largely to sheep, human society came into being, and with it came laws and customs for the benefit of the little community. The next tremendous step was the discovery of how to spin wool into yarn and weave yarn into cloth, which paved the way for manufacturers and commerce.

And the First Girl Feels Ditto. Wilkins (sententiously)—The course of true love never runs smooth.

Wyse—True; and later in life when we see a girl we like better we feel mighty glad it didn't.—Boston Transcript.

How Could He Help It? Clergyman—Do you mean to say that your wife goes to church every Sunday without you?

Stray Sheep—Well, it isn't my fault. I can't persuade her to stay at home.—Pathfinder.

Where Quality Counts

One third of the cost of a good plumbing, heating or electric job is for work hidden from sight beneath walls and floors, and underground. Costly trouble is sure to develop unless this "unseen" work is properly done. Reliable materials and skillful workmanship cost less in the end—and we supply 'em.
